Caitlin North Lewis is a British actress born in Denpasar, Bali, Indonesia. Fluent in English and Indonesian, Caitlin embodies a cultural fusion that has enriched her artistic journey. Her multicultural background, combined with her natural acting talent, gives her a versatility that sets her apart in the contemporary film landscape.

She began her film career in 2017 with My Generation, in which she played the character Lula. This first role marked the beginning of a promising path on the big screen. In 2019, she once again stood out in Hit & Run, portraying Manda, a dynamic character that showcased her energy and presence in action and suspense scenes.

The year 2021 brought a new challenge with Paranoia, where she played Laura in a narrative filled with psychological tension. More recently, in 2023, she appeared in the film Dear David, taking on the role of Dilla, a central character in a story inspired by viral and supernatural phenomena.

Her dedication and sensitivity in crafting her characters have captivated both audiences and critics, establishing her as a rising actress. With each new role, she strengthens her position as one of the most promising young performers of her generation. Her ability to move naturally between different film genres, along with her command of two languages and international cultural background, make Caitlin North Lewis an artist with a truly unique profile in the world of cinema.
